

From: root@wt6.usdoj.gov@inetgw
To: Microsoft ATR,antitrust@ftc.gov@inetgw,Ralph@essen...
Date: 12/4/01 12:02pm
Subject: Microsoft Hegemony: "Electricity? Who needs it?"

CC: letters@latimes.com@inetgw,letters@sjmercury.com@i...

Re: Microsoft Advises Workers on Deal

- > Microsoft Corp. this week outlined for employees the
- > requirements of the company's proposed settlement
- > with the Justice Department and urged them not to
- > discuss the plan via e-mail.

Microsoft, the Software Arm of America, Inc., declines the efficiencies of internet email in it's development of the world's communications infrastructure, to prevent our holding it accountable in the future for it's tightening stranglehold over us. Fanatically asinine, Uncle Sam... show us your @$$ once again, it's so pretty.

- > Previously, the software giant was seriously hurt in
- > different courts by electronic correspondence that was
- > exhumed as part of the litigation process.

Why not disconnect the phones too? And build a moat around the fortress?

"Electricity? Who needs it?"